

Enamine Establishes Enamine Scientific Research Institute to Accelerate Breakthroughs in Science

Kyiv, Ukraine — May 21, 2025 — Enamine, the leading provider of chemical compounds and drug discovery services, launches a non-profit organization - Enamine Scientific Research Institute (Enamine SRI). The Institute aims to coordinate scientists in Ukraine supporting research and innovations in chemistry, biology, computer science, and early-stage drug discovery, as well as to help students and young scientists in their development.

Enamine Scientific Research Institute will collaborate with other institutions permanently to share knowledge among the researchers worldwide. Enamine SRI will be led by Prof. Serhii Ryabukhin, Dr., a leading Ukrainian chemist. Enamine will be constantly supporting with all the necessary equipment, lab space, and resources.

"Enamine is a scientifically driven company. Through the scientific approach, we have been routinely solving the research goals of our clients and collaborators. Today, we are happy to launch a separate non-profit institution that will be fully focused on the scientific aspects of modern science. We at Enamine are proud that after more than three decades of our history, we could step further and create a new research institution. We are sure it will help solve global scientific challenges," commented Andrey Tolmachev, Ph.D., Founder and Owner of Enamine.

"We think that now, in the era of open science and collaborations, we keep up with the times and open Enamine SRI, a non-profit organization, that should provide the structural link between the commercial and scientific parts of Enamine Group. We are open to diverse scientific collaborations," added Prof. Serhii Ryabukhin, Dr., Director of Enamine SRI.
