Dear Japanese Customer,

Namiki and Enamine have collaborated for over 20 years, and for the most part of this time, Namiki was an exclusive distributor of all Enamine products and services. Namiki is an excellent partner providing services on the highest level under any circumstances.

In the modern world, the purchasing process has become different. On the one hand, you can conveniently place an online order using your smartphone. On the other hand, many company policies require rigorous analysis of every single item and choosing the best offer possible. Providing the best products and best services are mutual values for both Namiki and Enamine, and both companies have come to an agreement allowing our customers to choose an option they prefer. From now on, you are free to decide how to purchase Enamine products and services as well as how to interact with us.

Namiki remains a strategic partner of Enamine in the Japanese market with established business relations, and Enamine remains dedicated to further developing collaboration with Namiki.

Kind regards,
